i think you may have a lingering ovr account and their process of merging an ovr account that has already been linked to your console account but never registered for ovr content. the best step to recover is to change your ovr registered account to playstation 4 system at playstation.com. this time is a little tricky because we don't want you to make it a new account. first, you need to have your ovr account registered to your account and have access to your profile, so open your ovr account in playstation.click on "account" and then "merge account" with your ps4 account information. it will open a new window. ensure you have put in the right account name, your email address, download link, and your display name. click "next" and it will merge everything to the your account. i am confused about the prices. when i created this account i signed up to $10 a month on the ps vita service but the application was for $15 a month so i cancelled and went to the day pass for the playstation network. no i know i am not allowed to download more than one game and i know the playstation plus 2 week free trial was cancelled but that did not stop me downloading free games. i wanted to download. i have followed the support information here on how to get apps off my ps vita and it mentions two steps which i have already done. i have done this multiple times as i need more apps and i need to save the games i have bought that i want to keep offline.<https://support.playstation.com/en-us/help/1342215/how-do-i-stop-storing-games-downloadable-on-my-portable-hard-drivehttps://support.google.com/googleplay/answer/3124492?hl=en> <https://support.microsoft.com/en-us/help/994844/get-apps-off-you-portable-hard-drive-ms-portable-media-player> but everytime i follow the steps it keeps asking for a code that does not exist
